Part One: Introduction

So, What Is This Thing?

In short, this eBook is a collection of different options that may forgive, discharge, or pay for all or a portion of your federal student loans.

Simple, right? The tricky stuff comes on the following pages.

Why We Created This

Quite frankly, because we're awesome. But really, because we care about your success managing your student loans.

The amount of options out there is dizzying and confusing, and we think it's cruel to make you figure it out all on your own. Also, we haven't found another resource out there that covers all the options like this does (and we'd know—we work in student loans).

We figured you might want some help, and you might not like that help to come in the form of a big, intimidating table or webpage. So we wrote this easy-to-navigate book and did our best to collect everything in one place. There may be more options out there, and some of the ones here may change, so it's always good to do your own research too. Still, we hope you think this resource is a helpful jumping-off point.

Ground Rules: What Are Forgiveness And Discharge?

Student loan forgiveness and discharge are programs instituted by the federal government (as well as some state governments, organizations, and businesses) that eliminate all or part of a student's loans if he or she qualifies. These options exist to help borrowers shoulder the burden of student debt if they give back to their community, work in fields or areas of need, or face unpredicted, extenuating circumstances.

The difference between loan forgiveness and discharge is the circumstances that can cancel the debt. Loan discharges usually occur if there is no way the borrower can pay a loan (e.g., a total and permanent disability or death) or if a borrower can no longer apply the education for which the loan was granted (e.g., the school the borrower was attending closed before they could finish their program).

Loan forgiveness happens when the forgiving party (e.g., the government) determines that the borrower has given back to the community in a way they've specified, like through teaching or public service. Special repayment programs can act as a form of forgiveness as well. Federal and governments, as well as organizations, offer these programs to promote service in needed fields or high-need areas.

Covering Your Bases

Though forgiveness is a huge opportunity for any do-gooders out there, planning a career and loan payments around it may not be the best idea. Regulations change, you may not meet all the requirements, or forgiveness could take longer than you think. Make sure to prepare for these possibilities—and have a backup plan.

You should never take on student loan debt assuming that you will be able to forgive all or part of it down the road. Always borrow the bare minimum you need, and think of any potential forgiveness benefits as a (very) happy bonus.

Also, know that the IRS considers many student loan forgiveness options to be taxable—so if you do have some or all of your loans forgiven, the forgiven amount may end up affecting your tax bill at the end of the year. To determine if forgiveness is taxable, the IRS will generally look at whether the forgiveness occurred due to the borrower fulfilling a service requirement. If you are fulfilling a service requirement to receive forgiveness, then the IRS will generally not tax the amount. However, you should consult a tax professional to determine whether the forgiveness you receive is taxable.

You can read more about this at www.irs.gov.

Applying For Forgiveness

To apply for forgiveness, you may need proof that you worked for the required number of years at the location or in the profession that makes you eligible for forgiveness.

We linked all of the forms for the listed forgiveness options, but a simple Google search may allow you to find other possibilities as well. Be wary of scams and the fine print before filing for anything. You shouldn't have to pay to apply for forgiveness or discharge.

Using This Book

We designed this eBook to help you discover, access, and learn more about what options for forgiveness are available to you. We highlighted eligibility criteria, qualifying loans, and the steps for pursuing an option—including links to the forms you need to apply. There's also a glossary at the end of the book if you need to know the difference between loan types or repayment options.

A quick warning: This book is not all-inclusive by any means. Many employers offer student loan repayment benefits, and there may be other forgiveness programs that we haven't found. Even if you don't see anything you might be eligible for here, it never hurts to ask around at your place of employment, city, state, or even any social clubs or sports teams you may participate in. We'll do our best to keep this book current, but sometimes programs like these can change or get phased out.

Also, be sure to visit the sites we've linked to for complete eligibility requirements. These programs have lots of ins and outs (you didn't think getting rid of your loans would be easy, right?), so we only included the highlights.

Perkins Loan Cancellation And Discharge

To Be Eligible ...

Perkins loans have unique requirements for loan cancellation based on the field you work in. Schools award these federal, low-interest loans to high-need students attending or planning to attend college. Approximately 1,700 participating schools offer Perkins loans.

Depending on their profession (see list below), Perkins loan borrowers can have up to 100% of their loan cancelled over the course of 5 years (except when indicated). Here's how it works:

- 15% of their principal balance and accrued interest can be cancelled after their first and second year of qualifying service.
- 20% of their principal balance and accrued interest can be cancelled after their third and fourth year.
- 30% of their principal balance and accrued interest can be cancelled after their fifth year.

Perkins loans also offer concurrent deferment if you are performing qualifying service. Combining that postponement with these cancellation options means you could potentially never have to make payments on these loans.

The professions eligible for cancellation and the requirements are listed below.

- Attorney: You must be a full-time attorney employed in a federal public or community defender organization. You must perform qualified service that includes August 14, 2008, or began on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Child or family services agency: You must be a full-time employee of a public or nonprofit child or family services agency providing services to high-risk children and their families from low-income communities. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Firefighter: You must be a full-time firefighter whose service included August 14, 2008, or began on or after that date. Firefighters may receive up to 100% forgiveness of their loans.
- Head Start: You must be a full-time staff member in the education component of a Head Start program. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans—15% of the principal balance and accrued interest for the each year of service.
- Imminent danger area: You must serve in the U.S. Armed Forces in a hostile fire or imminent danger area. You may receive forgiveness for up to 50% of your outstanding loans if your active duty ended before August 14, 2008. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your outstanding loans if your active duty includes or began after August 14, 2008.

- Intervention services provider: You must be a full-time qualified professional provider of early intervention services for the disabled. Service must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Law enforcement: You must be a full-time law enforcement or corrections officer. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness for your loans.
- Librarian: You must be a librarian with a master's degree working in a Title I-eligible elementary or secondary school or in a public library serving Title I-eligible schools. Work must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Nurse or medical technician: You must be a full-time nurse or medical technician. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your outstanding loans.
- Prekindergarten or child care: You must be a full-time staff member in a prekindergarten or child care program that is licensed or regulated by a state. Work must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Special education teacher: You must be a full-time special education teacher of children with disabilities in a public school, nonprofit elementary or secondary school, or educational service agency. If the service is at an educational service agency, it must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Speech pathologist: You must be a full-time speech pathologist with a master's degree working in a Title I-eligible elementary or secondary school. Your service must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Teacher at an educational service agency: You must be a full-time teacher in a designated educational service agency that serves students from low-income families. Your service must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Teacher in shortage area field: You must be a full-time teacher of math, science, foreign languages, bilingual education, or other fields designated as teacher shortage areas. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness of your loans.
- Tribal college faculty member: You must be a full-time faculty member at a tribal college or university. Your service must include August 14, 2008, or have begun on or after that date. You may receive up to 100% forgiveness.
- Vista or Peace Corps volunteer: You must serve for a period of time in the AmeriCorps Vista program or the Peace Corps. You may receive forgiveness for up to 70% of your loans over the course of 4 years—15% of the principal balance and accrued interest for the first and second years and 20% of the principal balance and accrued interest for the third and fourth years.

Part Three: Loan Discharge Options

Closed Schools/School Error

Borrowers may be eligible if their school closed while they were attending it or within 90 days of leaving it. They may also be eligible if they withdrew from school and were not refunded the correct amount. Borrowers are only eligible if they received their loans on or after January 1, 1986.

Discharge Closed School

To Be Eligible ...

This program is for borrowers who could not complete their program of study because the school closed while they were enrolled or within 120 days of their attendance. If you were offered a Teach-Out Program and did not accept or completed your program of studies at another institution, you are not eligible.

If you meet the requirements, you are eligible to have 100% of the loans you took out for that program forgiven—including any amounts you've already paid.

Next Steps

To receive an application for a closed school discharge, you must contact your loan servicer. If you have questions regarding your closed school, contact the appropriate person here.

Discharge Unpaid Refund

To Be Eligible ...

This is for borrowers who were eligible for a refund on their loans after withdrawing from school but did not receive all or a portion of the loan. You may be eligible for this whether your school is open or closed.

If you meet the requirements, you are eligible to receive up to the amount that was originally supposed to be refunded and was not.

Loans That Qualify

- Parent PLUS loans
- Grad PLUS loans

Next Steps

To see if you are eligible, contact the school you withdrew from and request their federal aid refund policy. If you did not follow the school's posted withdrawal procedures, you may not be eligible for a refund. You should also contact your loan servicer for more information.

Disaster

This section features a discharge option for victims of September 11, 2001.

Spouses And Parents Of Victims of September 11, 2001. Forgiveness

To Be Eligible ...

This discharge is available to the spouses of eligible public servants (police officers, firefighters, Armed Forces, or other safety and rescue personnel) or other eligible victims who died or became permanently and totally disabled due to physical injuries suffered in the September 11 attacks.

If you meet these requirements, you are eligible to earn back 100% of the loan amount you owed on September 11, 2001.

Next Steps

If you are eligible for this form of forgiveness, access the application here. For more information on this form of forgiveness, look here.

Financial Hardship

The following options are for borrowers who face financial hardship based on income or debt.

Bankruptcy

To Be Eligible ...

You must prove to a bankruptcy judge that repaying your loans would be an undue hardship. This standard generally requires you to show that there is no likelihood of any future ability to repay. As a result, it can be difficult to discharge federal student loans through bankruptcy.

If you are eligible for this type of discharge, you can have up to 100% of your loan's amount forgiven. You may also regain eligibility of federal student aid if you previously lost it.

Loans That Qualify

- Stafford loans
- Parent PLUS loans
- Grad PLUS loans
- Consolidation loans
- Perkins loans

Next Steps

You must apply for this type of discharge in an adversary proceeding in bankruptcy court. To learn how to go about doing this, look here.

Income-Based Repayment

To Be Eligible ...

You must make 25 years of eligible payments or 300 payments under the income-based repayment (IBR) program. Only payments made on or after July 1, 2009, count.

Not all borrowers qualify for IBR. To qualify, you must have a partial financial hardship—meaning that payments to your eligible loans exceed 15% of your discretionary income. IBR caps the maximum monthly payment at 15% of your discretionary income. This is the difference between your AGI and 150% of the annual poverty guideline for your family size and state.

If you are eligible, you can have up to 100% of your outstanding balance forgiven after 25 years (10 if you work in public service).

Loans That Qualify

- Stafford loans
- Grad PLUS loans
- Consolidation loans, except loans that include Parent PLUS loans

Next Steps

To apply for IBR, you need to submit two forms to your servicer: an application and an IRS Tax Form 4506-T.

Income-Contingent Repayment

To Be Eligible ...

You must make 25 years of eligible payments or 300 payments under the income-contingent repayment (ICR) program.

Payments are calculated each year and are based on your annual income (this includes your spouse's income if you file jointly), family size, and the total amount of your federal student loans. Payments are capped at 20% of your discretionary income.

If you are eligible, you can have up to 100% of your outstanding balance forgiven after 25 years (10 if you work in public service).

Loans That Qualify

- Direct Stafford loans
- Direct Grad PLUS loans
- Direct Consolidation loans (including those with Parent PLUS loans)

Next Steps

To apply for ICR, sign in to studentloans.gov and complete a request form.

Pay As You Earn Forgiveness

To Be Eligible ...

You must be a new Direct Loan borrower as of October 1, 2007, with a disbursement made after October 1, 2011. Any Direct Consolidation loan made on or after October 1, 2011, that does not include a Parent PLUS loan or a loan made prior to October 1, 2007 is eligible.

You must make 20 years (10 if you work in public service) of payments under the Pay As You Earn repayment plan. Not all borrowers qualify for Pay As You Earn. To qualify, you must have a partial financial hardship—meaning payments to your eligible loans exceed 10% of your discretionary income. Pay As You Earn caps your maximum monthly payment at 10% of discretionary income (the difference between your AGI and 150% of the annual poverty guideline for your family size and state).

If you are eligible, you can have up to 100% of your outstanding balance (after 240 eligible payments) forgiven.

Loans That Qualify

- Direct Stafford loans
- Direct Grad PLUS loans
- Direct Consolidation loans, except those that include a Parent PLUS loan or a loan made prior to October 1, 2007

Next Steps

To apply for Pay As You Earn forgiveness, sign in to studentloans.gov and complete a request form.

Fraud

You may be eligible to have 100% of your loan discharged if someone fraudulently obtained the loan in your name. This includes identity theft and false certification. Forgery is another kind of fraud addressed in our links and references section.

False Certification Due To Identity Theft

To Be Eligible ...

The person who stole your identity must have been convicted of the crime. Generally, you must also file and submit a police report and various other evidence of identity theft as requested by the loan holder and/or the U.S. Department of Education. In addition, you must be willing to assist in any proceedings related to the investigation and/or prosecution of the identity theft. This type of discharge is only for loans received after July 1, 2006.

If you meet the requirements, you are eligible to receive up to 100% of your student loan discharged.

Loans That Qualify

- Stafford loans
- Grad PLUS loans
- Parent PLUS loans
- Consolidation loans
- Perkins loans

Next Steps

To discharge your loans due to identity theft, fill out an identity theft report, file a police report, and contact your loan holder.

False Loan Certification

To Be Eligible ...

This discharge is for borrowers whose schools falsely certified their eligibility for a loan. This can be caused by a school official falsely signing the borrower's name on a loan application or master promissory note, which resulted in the borrower not benefitting from the funds. This is called a false certification due to unauthorized signature.

False certification also occurs when a school admits a student even though the student did not meet the requirements of admission. In this instance, the borrower did not have the ability to benefit from the education received. This is called a false certification due to ability to benefit.

The final cause of false loan certification is disqualifying status, meaning the student is unable to meet the legal requirements for employment in the student's state of residence in the occupation for which the program of study was intended due to age (upon completion of training), physical or mental condition, criminal record, or other reason. This disqualifying status must have existed at the time the loan was issued.

This discharge option is only for loans received on or after January 1, 1986.

If you meet these requirements, you are eligible to receive up to 100% of your federal student loan discharged.

- Fill out this form for the false certification due to ability to benefit and submit to your loan holder.
- Fill out this form for the disqualifying status and submit it to your loan holder.

Medical

The following options are for borrowers who suffer from physical or mental impairments or have died.

Death

To Be Eligible ...

In the unfortunate case of the passing of the borrower, the borrower's family can have the borrower's loans discharged.

Parent PLUS loans can be discharged if the borrower (the parent) dies or if the student on whose behalf the loan was borrowed dies.

In the case of spousal Consolidation loans, only the portion of the loan attributed to the deceased borrower can be discharged.

If you meet these requirements, you are eligible to receive up to 100% of your remaining balance discharged. In addition, payments made on behalf of the borrower after the borrower's death will be refunded.

Loans That Qualify

- Stafford loans
- Grad PLUS loans

- Parent PLUS loans
- Consolidation loans
- Perkins loans

Next Steps

You must send an original or certified copy of the death certificate (or a photocopy of either) to all of the borrower's loan holders to discharge the loans.

Total And Permanent Disability

To Be Eligible ...

A physician must certify that the borrower is unable to engage in substantial gainful activity due to a physical or mental impairment. This impairment must be expected to result in death or last for a continuous period of at least 60 months, or it must have already lasted for a continuous period of at least 60 months.

The Secretary of Veteran Affairs (VA) can also certify the borrower to be unemployable due to a service-connected disability.

Effective July 1, 2013, borrowers may be eligible for discharge if they have been certified as disabled by the Social Security Administration (SSA) where the notice of award for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits indicates that the borrower's next scheduled disability review will be within 5-7 years.

Any remaining balance on your federal student loans will be discharged from the date that your physician certifies your application.

If the VA certified your application, any federal student loan amounts owed after the date of the service-related injury will be discharged.

If you were approved due to the SSA determination, any remaining balance on your federal student loans would be discharged as of the date the SSA determination is received by the Department of Education on or after July 1, 2013.

You must return any disbursements made after the TPD certification approval within 120 days.

Part Four: Other Useful Stuff

Glossary

Trying to figure out what some of this student loan lingo actually means? You came to the right place.

Bankruptcy: A process by which some or many of your debts can be discharged—meaning you won't have to pay them. However, it can come with some major costs, like giving up some of your assets (such as your home, car, etc.) Most importantly, student loans can be difficult to discharge through bankruptcy.

Discharge: The cancellation of a student loan debt due to certain rare circumstances, such as a school closure, the death of the borrower, or total and permanent disability.

Direct Loan Program (DL): The most common federal loan program. With Direct loans, the federal government lends money directly to students, instead of going through a private bank (see FFELP). DL offers subsidized and unsubsidized Direct Stafford loans, federal Direct Consolidation loans, and Direct PLUS loans. As of June 30, 2010, all federal student loans are Direct loans.

Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP): Prior to July 1, 2010, the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP) was an alternative way to get Stafford, PLUS, SLS, and Consolidation loans. Private lenders originated FFELP loans with government backing. As of June 30, 2010, new FFELP loans are no longer issued.

Forgiveness: The cancellation of a loan's remaining balance—or a portion of the balance—by the federal government.

Loan Repayment Plans

- Income-Based Repayment (IBR): Plan that sets your payment amounts based on your income and family size and caps your payments at 15% of your discretionary income if you are eligible. After 25 years (10 if you work in public service) and 300 eligible payments, any remaining balance may be forgiven but would be taxable.
- Income-Contingent Repayment (ICR): Similar to IBR, but caps your payments at 20% of your discretionary income and is available for Direct loan borrowers only. After 25 years (10 if you work in public service) and 300 eligible payments, any remaining balance may be forgiven but would be taxable.
- Pay As You Earn Repayment: Another plan similar to IBR that allows you to make payments of no more than 10% of your discretionary income if you qualify. After 20 years (10 if you work in public service), any remaining outstanding balance may be forgiven but would be taxable.

Types of Loans

- Consolidation loans: Loans that combine one or more pre-existing loans into one new loan and (generally) a longer repayment term.
- Health Professions Student Loans (HPSLs): Loans for health care professionals specializing in many areas other than primary care or nursing. HPSLs are part of Title VII of the Public Health Service Act.

- Institutional loans: Non-federal loans provided directly by your school.
- Nursing Student Loans (NSLs): Loans for nursing professionals looking to supplement their financial aid. NSLs are part of Title VIII of the Public Health Service Act.
- Stafford loans: The most common federal student loans. Stafford loans can be either subsidized or unsubsidized.
- Supplemental Loans for Students (SLS): Federal loans for financially independent students. This program was eliminated in 1994 with the creation of unsubsidized Stafford loans.
- Perkins loans: Federal loans that schools award to their students who have exceptional financial need.
- PLUS loans: Loans borrowed by parents of eligible dependent students (Parent PLUS loans) or by graduate students themselves (Grad PLUS loans) typically after exhausting their Stafford loan awards.
- Private student loans: Non-federal loans provided by private lenders that can help you pay for school, if you don't have enough other financial aid.
